

Sample layout of finished sign

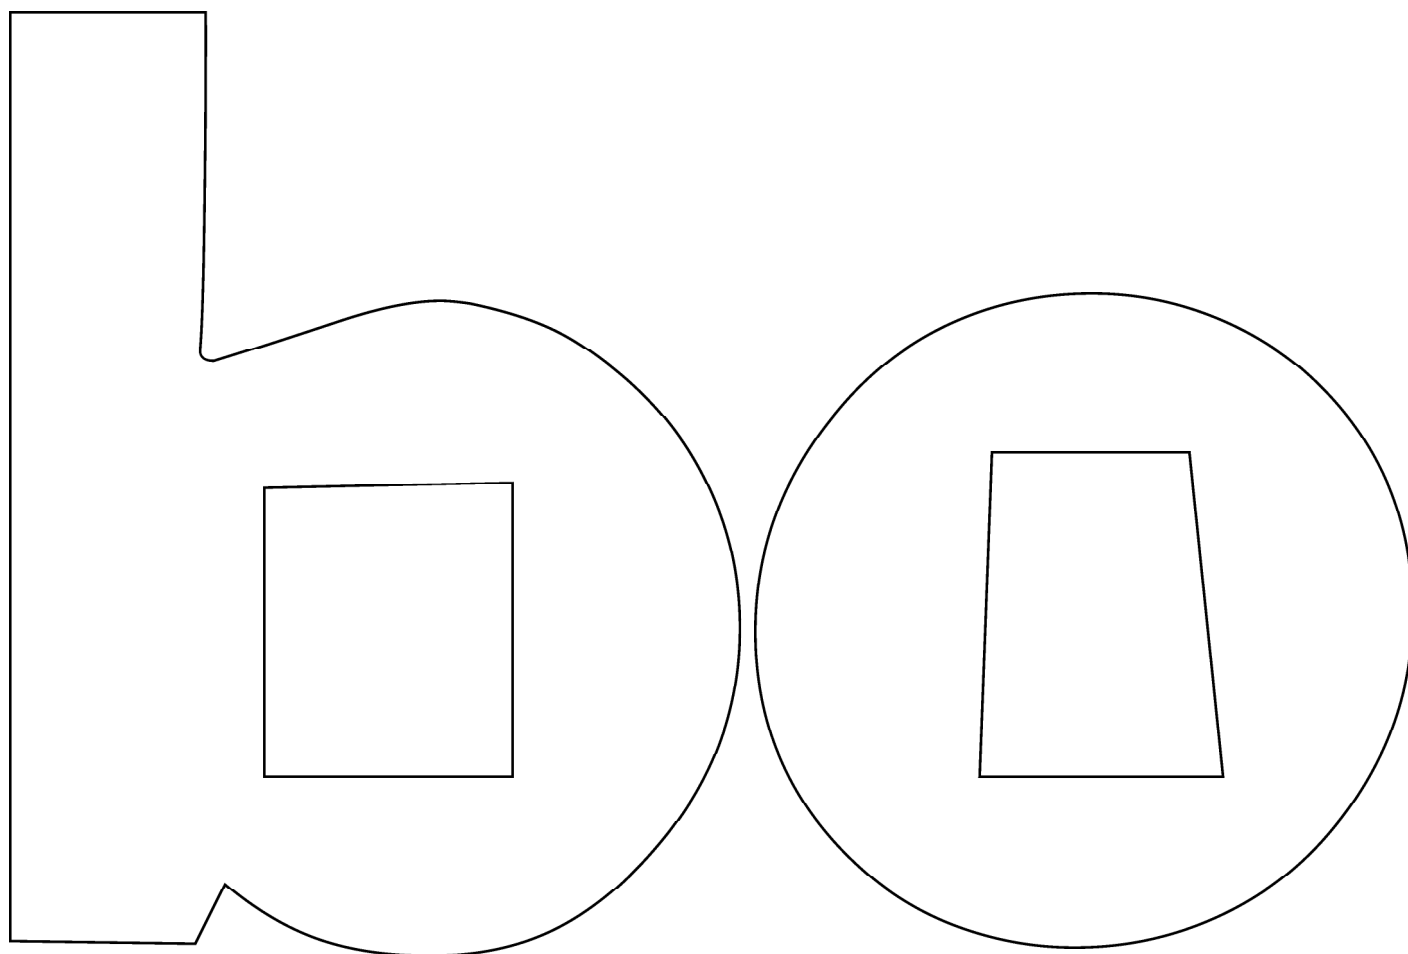

Good News Club sign letters: Print out or photocopy each word in "Good News Club" onto a different color heavy paper or card stock, cut out letters and adhere to a board with glue stick, double-sided Scotch tape, or rubber cement. The letters will fit nicely on a 20x30 or 22x28 board oriented vertically. (Be sure to add the registered trademark symbol ® after the "b" in "Club". The easiest way is to add it by hand with a fine-tip permanent marker. Just trace around the hole in a CD add an "R" in the circle.)

There will be room at the bottom for a sheet of colored paper with the day, time and room location of your club, which you can hand-letter or print on your computer (about 100 point size type). The letters of the pattern may be enlarged on a photocopier for a bigger sign. Cover the sign with clear Contact® plastic covering to protect it if desired (available at Home Depot, some drugstores, WalMart, etc).

Another method of making the letters is to rub the side of a pencil lead over the reverse side of all the letter outlines, then lay them on the backing of colored Contact covering (or similar self-adhesive vinyl found at drug, discount, and dollar stores) and trace over them heavily with a sharp pencil, transferring the outlines to the backing of the vinyl. Then cut out the letters, arrange on the board and make light guide marks for positioning, peel the backing paper off and adhere to the board.

Board similar in construction to corrugated cardboard but made of plastic makes a more durable sign than cardboard or foamcore. It is available at Michael's and ValuCraft.
